

Principal Moderator guidance – Introduction

Welcome to the Cambridge IGCSE Physical Education Training Programme.

Coursework has many benefits to you as a teacher. You can choose coursework which will complement your plan for teaching and you can take into account the interests and abilities of your learners.

For your learners, coursework will help them develop skills such as critical thinking, creativity and independent learning among many others. These skills will benefit your learners not just in other areas of this syllabus, but also in other subjects and in future stages of their education and work life. Coursework will also enable learners to demonstrate the quality of work they can produce away from the pressure of the timed examination.

Completing this coursework training programme will help prepare you to deliver and mark your learners' coursework accurately, in line with Cambridge standards. You will be provided with opportunities to learn about and practice key coursework delivery and marking skills. You will hear from the principal moderator about important aspects of these skills and you will be able to test your knowledge of each skill within the modules making up this programme

You should remember however that both the syllabus and coursework handbook provide further detailed information on the coursework requirements for this IGCSE. Please make sure that you refer to these documents regularly throughout this course and as you deliver coursework to your learners.
